Mandated Services of County Juvenile Departments in Oregon

Under Oregon law, county juvenile departments are statutory agencies responsible for providing essential services in support of the juvenile court system and juvenile justice functions within their counties. Oregon recognizes county juvenile courts and departments as the foundational providers of juvenile court-related services, with counties obligated to operate and fund these services in accordance with state law.

1. Conduct Intake, Assessment & Investigations

- County juvenile departments must investigate every child, youth, or youth offender brought before the juvenile court and report fully to the court. This includes reviewing reports, interviewing youth and families, and gathering relevant information to support judicial decision-making.
 - ORS 419A.012

2. Court Representation & Reporting

- Juvenile directors and counselors must be present in court to represent the interests of youth, provide information as required by the court, and take charge of youth before and after hearings as directed. Departments also must prepare and submit reports, such as monthly notification of probationers to school administrators and annual detention reports to the Oregon Criminal Justice Commission.
 - ORS 419A.014 and ORS 419A.015

3. Administration of Juvenile Court Services

- State law affirms that counties are responsible for administering juvenile court-related services as defined under ORS, recognizing juvenile departments as essential to providing services to children and families involved in the juvenile justice system.
 - ORS 419A.010, ORS 419A.018, and ORS 419A.020

4. Supervision, Disposition & Case Management

- While the Oregon Revised Statutes do not list every supervisory task in chapter 419A, county juvenile departments are charged with administering dispositions ordered by the juvenile court, supervising youth on probation, coordinating community-based interventions, and ensuring compliance with court orders. County examples (e.g., Lincoln and Sherman counties) illustrate these supervisory and service roles in practice.
 - ORS 419C.446 and ORS 419C.570

5. Detention & Shelter Coordination

- Counties must designate places for temporary custody and have the statutory authority to acquire, equip, and maintain detention or shelter facilities where appropriate. Counties are also responsible for detention placement decisions and related compliance with state standards.
 - ORS 419A.050, ORS 419A.059, and ORS 419A.063
